

THE MARITIME TIMES

Figure 1@Science Photo Library

Strategically placed next to the mainland and water routes from continental Europe to the capital, it was one of the main bases for the Danish conquest of England in the early 11th century. Later, in the 15th century it was the birthplace of many Tudors, including Henry VIII and Elizabeth I. The Maritime Greenwich includes the historic town centre and Royal Park, the Old Royal Naval college, Ranger's House, the Queen's House, Royal Observatory and National Maritime Museums. Many of the buildings are by the greatest British architects of the 17th and 18th centuries.

WALK HIGHLIGHTS

This tour will take you where time began and kings were born, featuring ones of UNESCO World Heritage.

1. The Queen's House (built 1616)
2. The Royal Naval College (built 1696)
3. The Royal Observatory (built 1675)
4. Ranger's House (built 1700)
5. The Cutty Sark (built 1869)

Figure 2@VisitLondon.com